Not illustrated. 1892 Excerpt: . . . probably become the law of the land, will aid us in enforcing in our State the most stringent measures against adulteration. All imported food products, and all such articles brought from sister States, will be, or can be, controlled by the provisions of said Act. I would recommend every intelligent person wishing to be informed on this subject to read the speech of the Hon. A. S. Paddock, member of the Senate, and that of Hon. Wm. H. Hatch, member of the House. I quote from the former, as follows: Mr. Elisha Winter, Secretary of the Committee on Legislation on the National Pure Food Movement, in a debate before the Retail Grocers Association of New York, spoke as follows: Adulteration plays into the hands of the avaricious few by giving them the chance to take more than their share of trade, on account of the low prices at which they can sell poor goods. The only protection the honest retailer can secure for himself is to ask the National Government to supplement the various States and municipalities by reaching imported commodities, interstate transportation, and in Territories under the jurisdiction of the United States authorities, the sale of food products. If the General Government will give the retailer this protection, he may then work out his own salvation by putting his individual guaranty upon all his goods and demanding that the State authorities shall then recognize the integrity of his purpose and give him support, instead...
